Regenerative agriculture - how ancestral practices are unlocking resilient tools

VALTER ZIANTONI

PRETATERRA, Brazil

Valter Ziantoni - Forestry Engineer and MSc in Agroforestry, Valter developed his master's thesis at Lake Tanganyika (Zambia), working with local indigenous knowledge and applying systematized solutions to foster the success of sustainable projects. More than 18 years of experience in agroforestry, including project management and coordination, native inventories and monitoring, classification of wood products, and NTFPs in the Amazon. Extensive experience in rural economy and sustainable development models, with international experience (UNDP and FAO) in management and leadership positions. Valter is a farmer and founder of PRETATERRA, an enterprise that develops agroforestry regenerative projects; they design complex systems integrated with innovative financial models.
